

Abstract

Method for operating an electronic device and electronic device

5 A method for operating an electronic device (100), particularly a telephone terminal, with an input device (105) and a display or output device (107) which exhibits at least one supplementary or selection function which can be activated via the input device, each activation of the or a particular supplementary or selection
10 function being detected, the result of the detection being subjected to a predetermined evaluation and a predetermined text being displayed or output in dependence on the result of the evaluation.

15 Figure 1

